

CARTOONAGRAMS--If Mollie, Waddy or Tony Is Lost, Try This

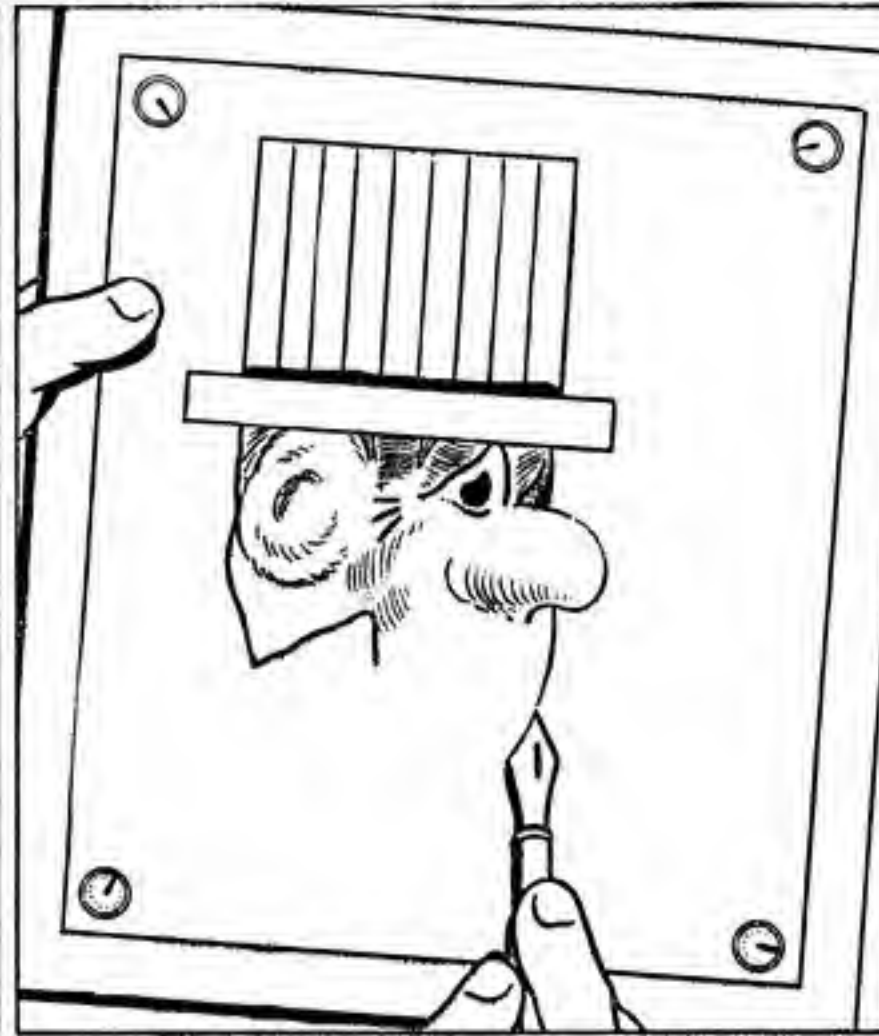

①

We know a funny clown who owns an elephant. He (the clown, not the elephant) wears a tall, striped hat, like this.

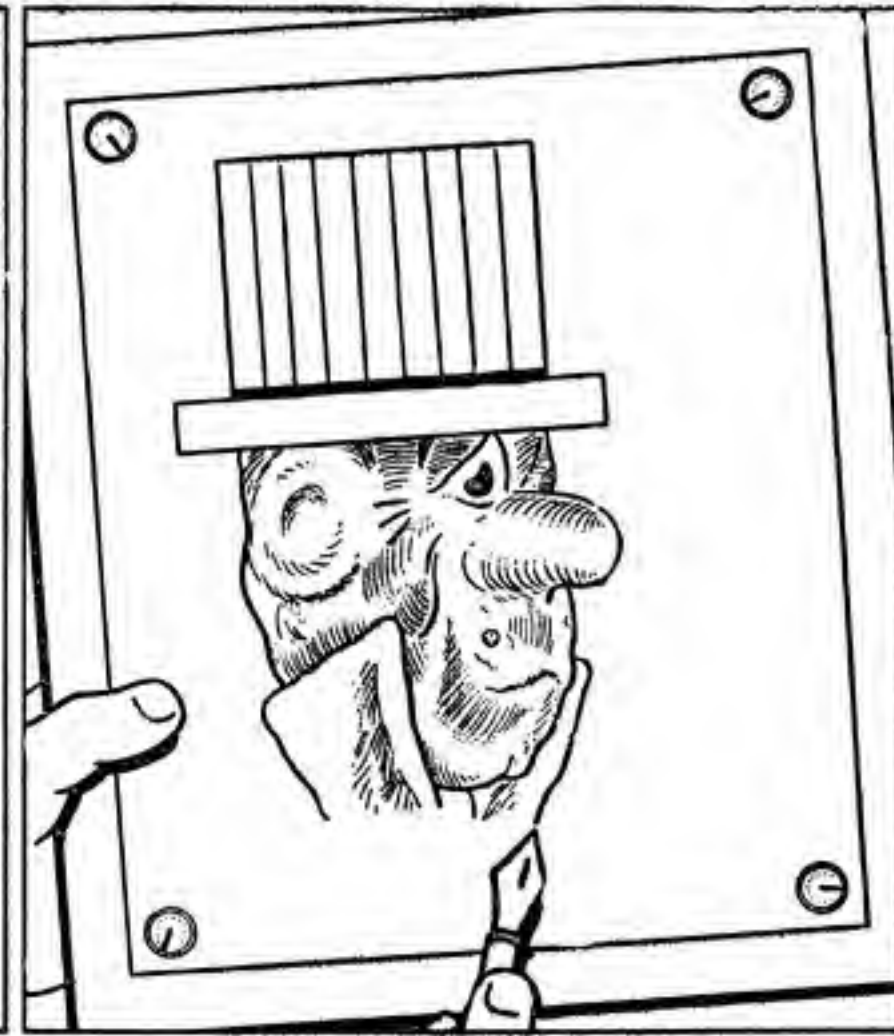

②

The clown earns a living by going from place to place and performing tricks with the elephant. Pretty soon we'll have the clown's picture.

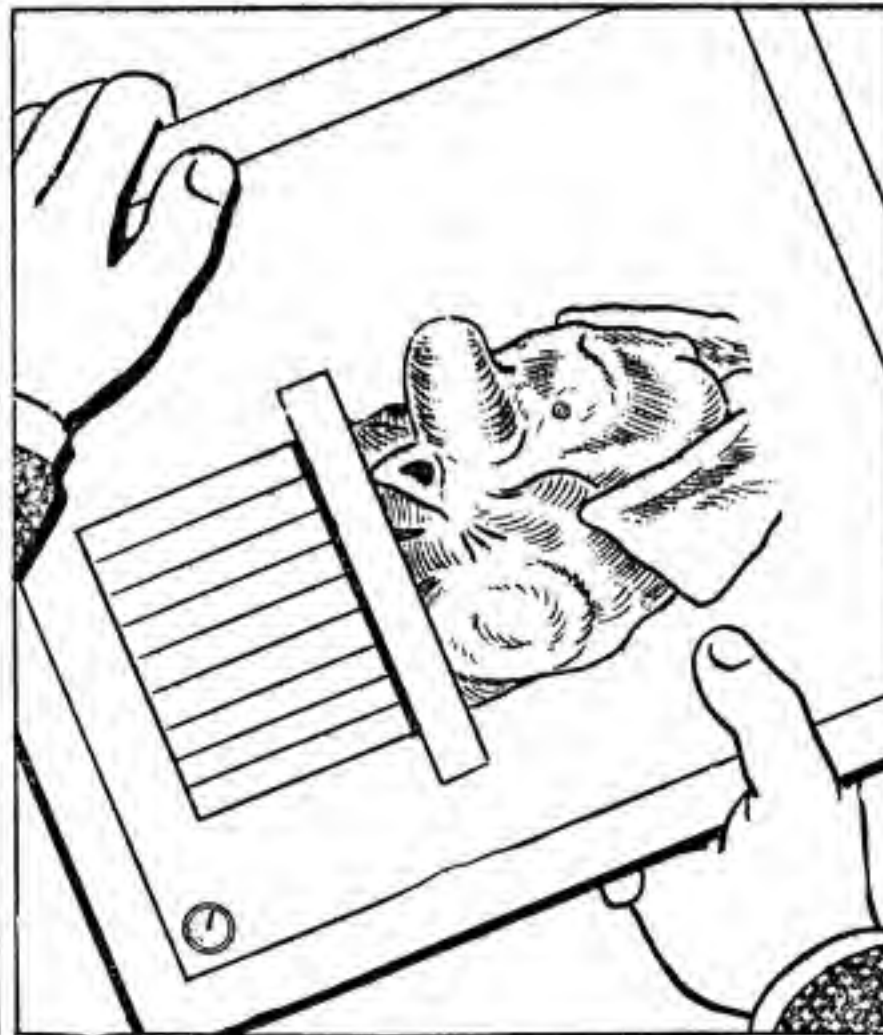

③

Here we see what the clown looks like. Looks rather gloomy today, doesn't he? Well, he feels gloomy, too, because he can't find the elephant.

④

That's too bad. Let's turn the clown's picture upside-down and maybe we can find the elephant for him.

⑤

Now that the picture is turned upside-down, let's add a few lines in this manner.

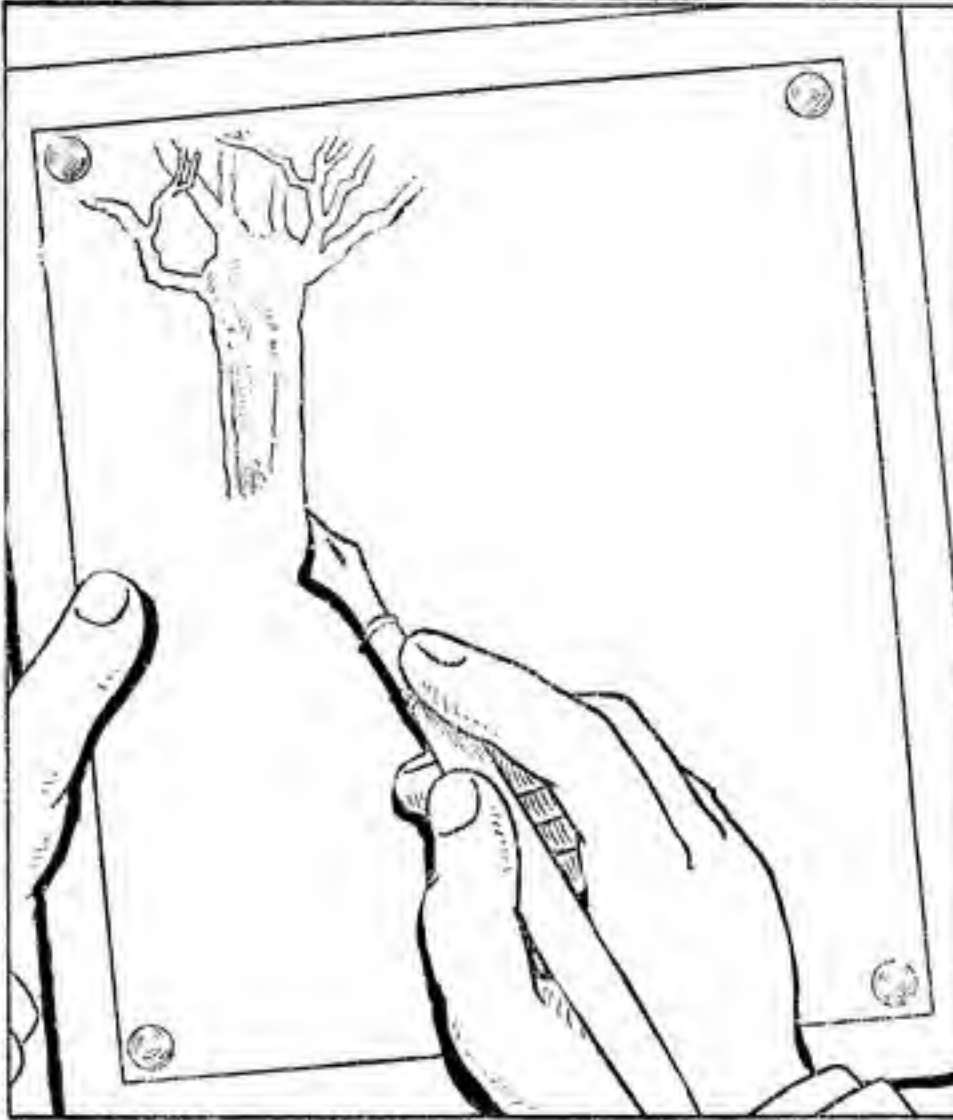

⑥

Well, we found him. all right. See, here he is, impatiently awaiting his master, the clown.

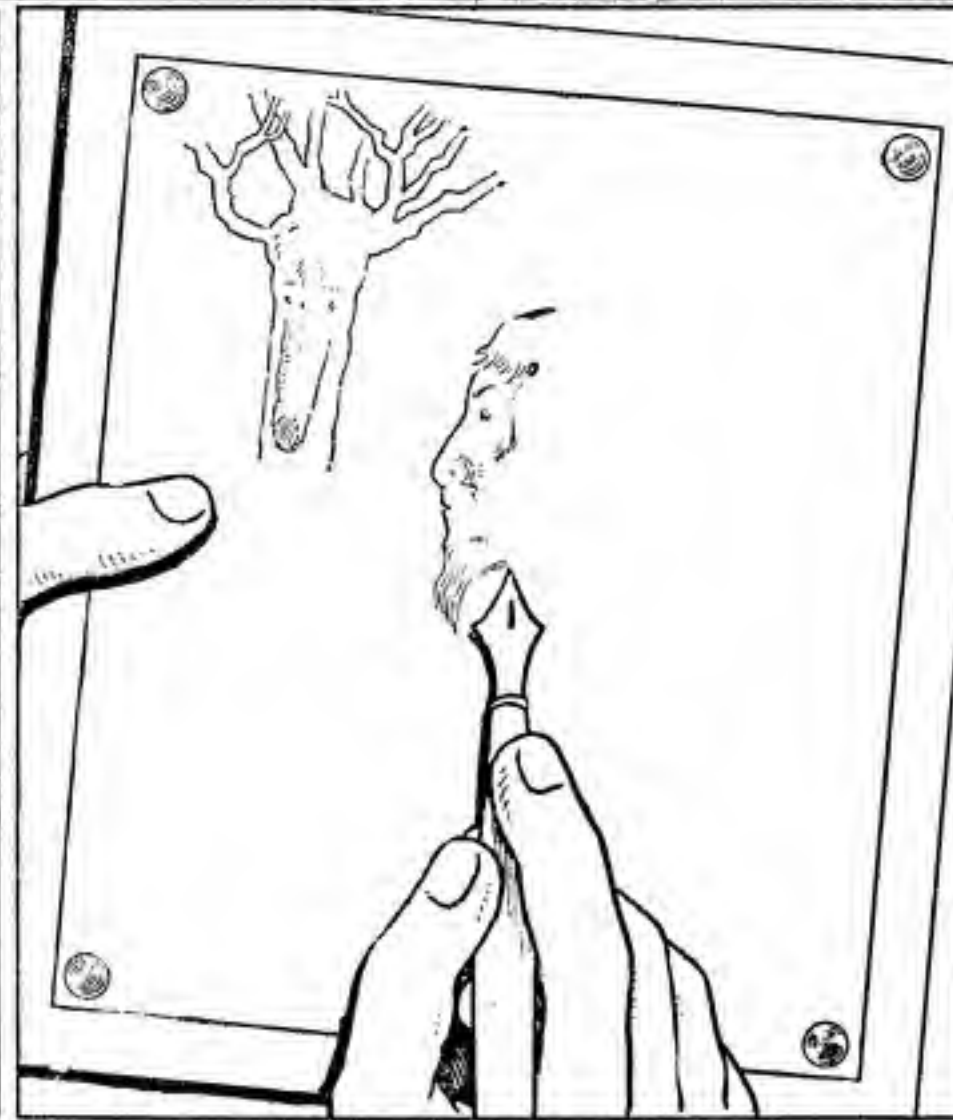

CARTOONAGRAMS---Picture Wizardry in a Brand New Way

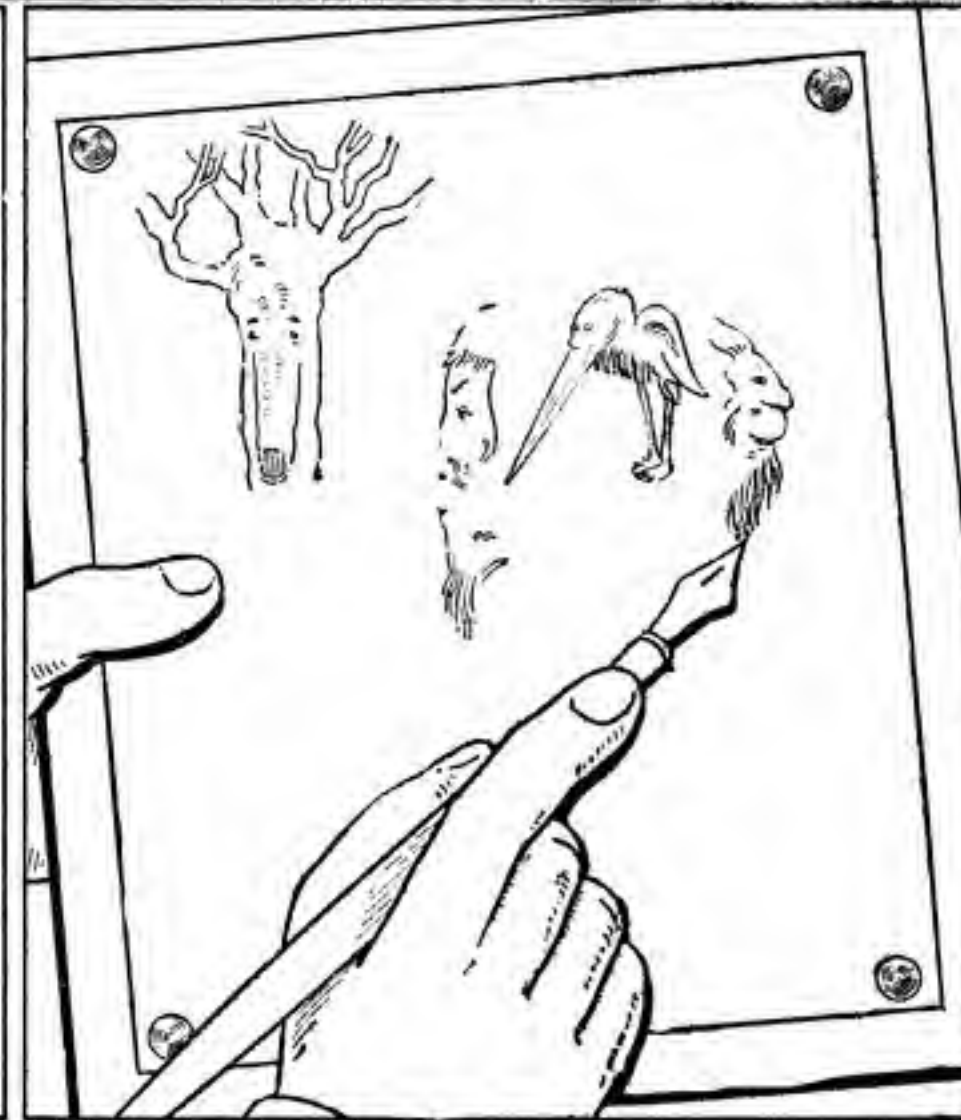

1
One day many many years ago, long before your time and mine, a man started to walk through a forest.

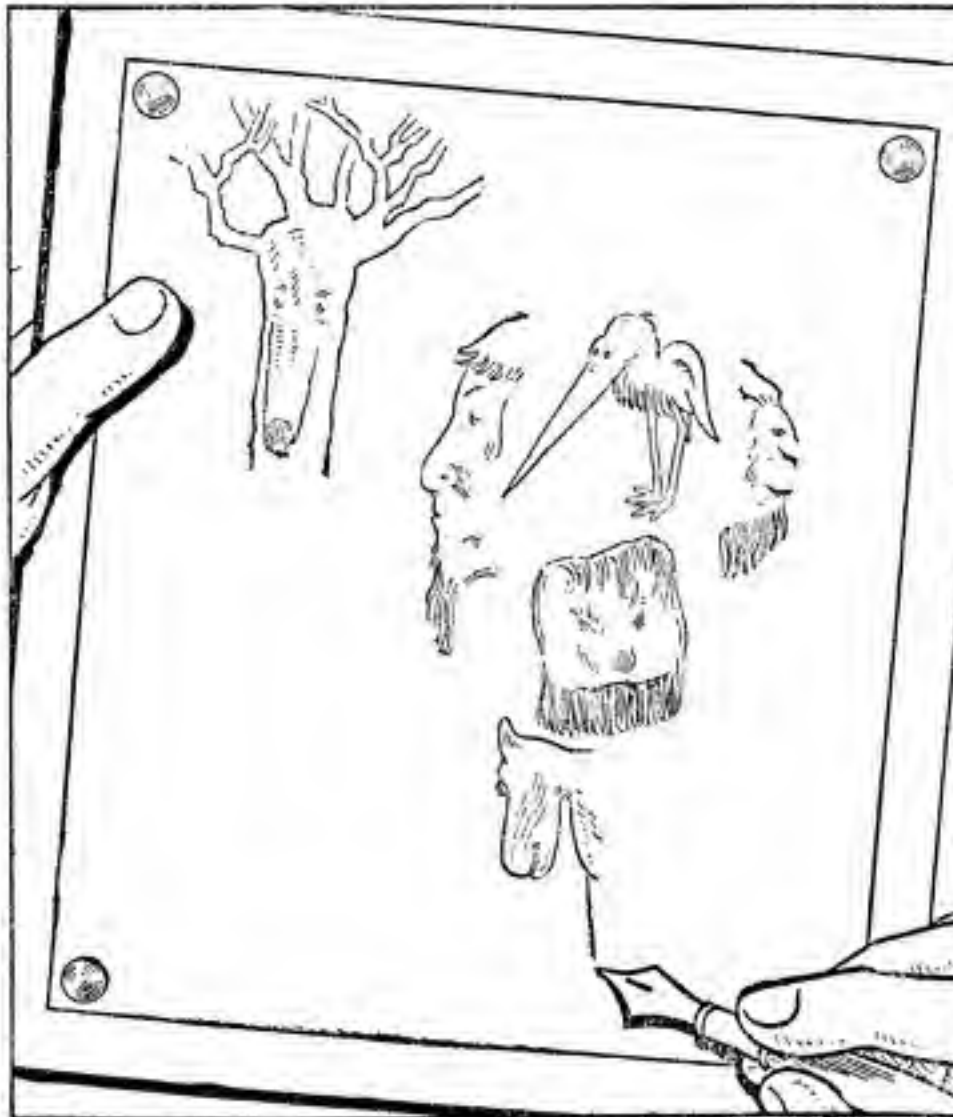

2
Suddenly he was confronted by a long-horned vamoose and a man-faced wossil just like the ones you see in the picture.

3
Just imagine his surprise then, to see also a straight-billed chinkle and a whiskered flimflamvs a moment later.

4
Looking around, he then saw a hairy squeakus and a goggle-eyed bunkus not far from the other animals.

5
He was a very kind hearted man and as these queer animals were harmless he did not molest them.

6
Instead, he just stood still and stared and stared and stared at them. Wouldn't you have done the same?

CARTOONAGRAMS—Artist's Wizardry Leads From Winter to Summer

①

Hazel is fond of outdoor sports. During the winter months she has little opportunity to indulge in her favorite recreations.

②

So she has to content herself with indoor amusements. This is Hazel ready to go to a party.

③

But in summer she likes to get out in the open. Let's add a few lines to the picture.

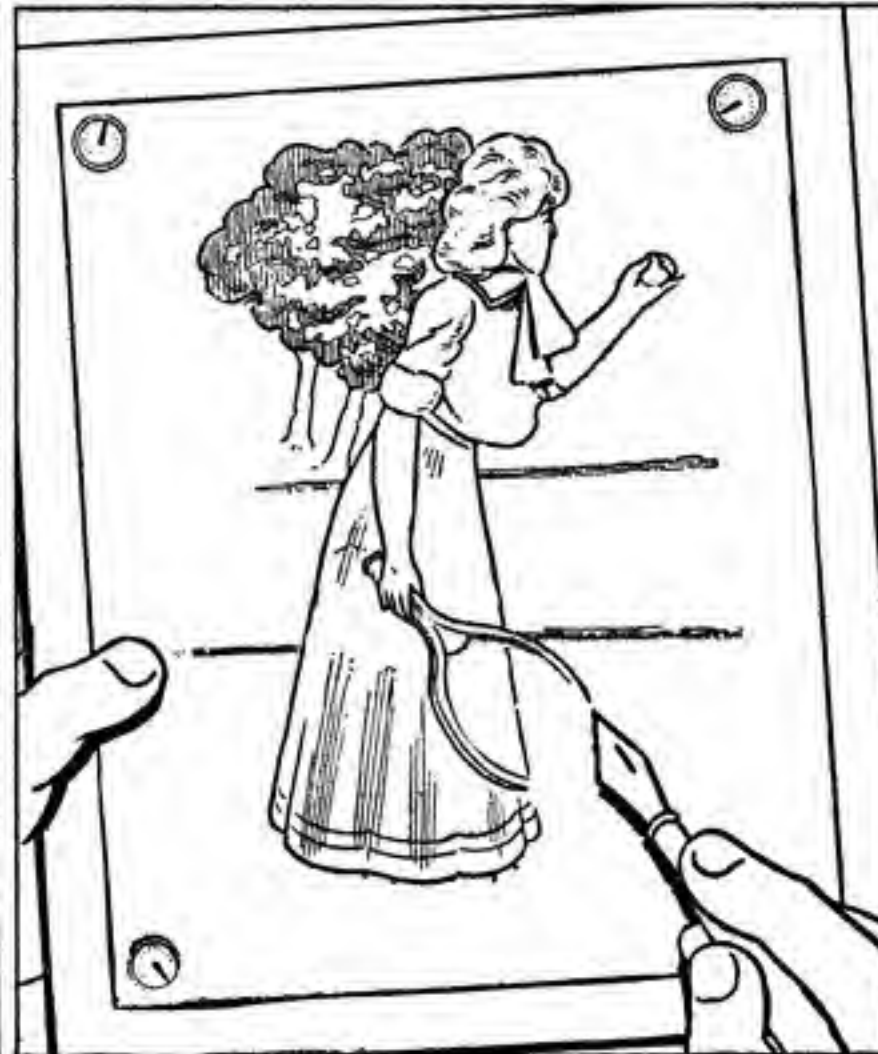

④

Pretty soon we'll see what game Hazel likes best. So we'll add a few more lines like this.

⑤

We're getting there, all right. Just a few more strokes of the pen and the picture will be finished.

⑥

Here we have a picture of Hazel as she is ready to "serve" in a game of tennis.

Saving the Day

①

Gosh! We've gone and made a mistake. The editor told us to draw a picture of a boy happier and freer than a pair of birds that a lady of Japan.

②

If we turn the first picture upside down like this—

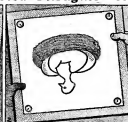

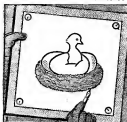

③

—and add a few more lines, we can a chap riding his way merrily along on his bicycle. By exercising his won't power, he keeps from falling off.

Scrambled Thoughts for Easter

Behold a chick getting its first liberty. Liberating its heart from the things we don't like in order to be slaves to the things we do like.

Next we must turn the picture upside down this way.

By adding a very few lines, we can a young bird. This young bird has been captured by her mother's love, but we don't just remember who it was captured by.
